TRUTH TRIUMPHS

Norway Citizens Testify for the Public Benefit.

A truthful statement of a Norway itizen, given in his own words, should convince the most skeptical about the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills. If you suffer from backache, nervousness, sleeplessness, urinary disorders or any form of kidney ills, use a tested kidney medicine.

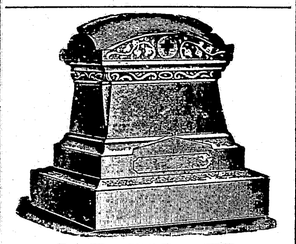

A Norway citizen tells of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Could you demand more convincing proof of merit?

C. E. Bradford, prop. of laundry, Main street, Norway, says: "For some time I had a dull pain through the small of my back, together with a tired feeling. I couldn't rest well. When a friend advised me to take Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a supply at F. P. Stone's Drug Store. After I used two boxes, the pains and other symptoms disappeared and there was a great improvement in every way. I have had no kidney trouble since." (Statement given April 30, 1912).

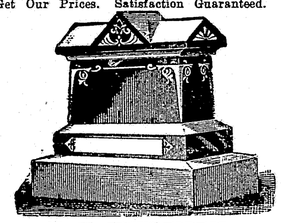

On June 6, 1916 Mr. Bradford added: "I still have confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills as it hasn't been necessary for me to use a kidney medicine since I took them."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Bradford had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgrs., Buffalo, N. Y. 37-38

BRIDGTON'S SERVICE FLAG

The raising of the town service flag, with 107 stars, and three gold stars, held in Post Office Square Saturday afternoon, was one of the most impressive events held here for many years. A very large crowd was present, including auto parties from the surrounding country.

A most unexpected feature was the opportune arrival of Sergt. Ruth Farnum, the noted lecturer, who was returning from the White Mountains on her way to take the train to New York, and on invitation of the committee, made a brief speech, ringing with patriotism.

The exercises were in charge of William Dews, and included music by Woodmen Band, prayer by Rev. S. T. Livingston; community singing, under the leadership of Charles Harrison. There were also patriotic speeches by Hon. L. F. McKinney and Rev. A. A. Callaghan.

Before the flag raising, there was a drill formation of the Boy Scouts, who acted as escorts for the Stars and Stripes, a company of young girls, who carried the town service flag, and the members of the Red Cross. This drill was arranged by Mr. Dews, and was most effective.

The service flag was raised by two of the Bridgton boys, for whom there are stars, Frank Keniston of the Wentworth Institute, Boston, and John Cockburn, of the U. S. Navy. Charles Maxfield was dressed as Uncle Sam. At the time of raising the flag, a salute was fired by Mrs. ward Smith.

War stamps were sold by members of the Red Cross. An interesting feature was the presentation of a fine flag to the Boy Scouts, this being done by Mrs. Beulah Gaylord Young, who is stopping at Harrison, the money having been contributed at the community sings and by contribution at the time, J. Bennett Pike presided.

OLD BILL SAYS

Dr. Day invited me to go with him on a trip when he was testing cattle, so I went along. Not as Harry Hutchins said "just to crank the car," but to see things perhaps not as others see them, but to my point of view, in a sensible way.

The first place we called was on Hatch's Hill in Lovell at A. M. Pottle's. It was most dark, Mr. Pottle was not to be seen, so we hunted around the barn for cattle. Pretty soon I heard a noise in the hay and I saw an old gun that a calf could crawl into sticking around the corner of a mow, then a voice said, "If you pull my horses' teeth, I'll blow you off the map." It was Mr. Pottle, he said we had the name of pulling all we could find and Ben Russell could stand it if he wanted to, but he didn't propose to.

After a while we convinced him that our intentions were honest and he stacked his arsenal and became quite cheerful and the more I saw of him the better I liked him.

The next place we called at was Fred Davis' on Smart's Hill. Mr. Davis has a fine herd and his barn was kept neat and clean, free from flies and it was cool here. We saw a sight common in the old days before people were educated so fine that they didn't have to eat to live, that was a girl milking a cow. "That's the way," said Dr. Day, "to have girls able to do anything." "Well," I said, "that is no Yankee girl, though I wish we had more like her." It was Alice Anderson, lived down in the next house. Her father's name is Rasmus Anderson and as I had not seen them since they lived at Chatham Center, I called on them for a bit. They told me they liked there better than at Chatham and Mr. Anderson said he liked his job for the DuPont Co.

The next day the doctor had a call at Byron Hutchins', West Fryeburg, and I went along and I never saw so many threshing machines before. You would see one behind every clump of bushes or old barn and even one down in the bed of the old river. I think it must have wandered down in there in search of grain and fell off the banks in the fog and as nothing on earth can stop one, it kept going.

I saw John Martin at West Fryeburg, he was very anxious to insure my life. I told him I didn't want to beat those poor insurance companies and I guessed I would try and earn it a few days longer, but it is funny that they have to hire a man to give away so much money and half the people won't accept it then.

We came back up to the doctor's camp, up to Cold River, almost up to the jumping off place. We stopped two nights and was planning to go on Mt. Royce, but it was foggy and looked like rain, so we gave it up intending to go later, but I had a good time and quite a change from cutting bushes.

Old Bill.

Big Barn Door Musings, Personal Sketches, etc.

Meredith Center, Sept., 1918.

The tribe recently attended an auction of antique furniture in the city. During the sale a three-legged, tip-uptop center table, which was stolen from our premises years ago, was discovered. It was purchased by a determined woman whose eyes and face were protected with tortoise shell spectacles. She knew her rights and exercised them in getting $10.00 of my money. She paid $2.05 which was $2.00 more than it was worth. As a family heirloom, it had to be got so that the blessed angel of peace might once more hover over our home.

This question arises: Have I legal rights or redress on the party selling stolen goods? The clerk and manager of the sale were notified before payment was made but the article had been "knock-off and turned over" to the purchaser by the auctioneer. The identity of the stolen table can be established beyond question, also the fact that it has innocently been in one's possession a dozen years or more. I have paid $10.00 to get it and his agents knowingly allowed it to pass out of his possession for $2.05, notwithstanding the protest before payment was made. What are my rights? Can any of my readers say? I'd really like to know where I am at in this transaction.

This unreliable flop-up and tip-over table was probably made in Pittsfield, N. H., or thereabouts in seventeen hundred and something. The story that it came over in the second trip of the Mayflower is unfounded. Two such tables were built, both coming into the Nehemiah (Berry) Shaw family prior to 1790. This one came to Meredith, with another of a different pattern, which is now in our possession, probably in 1802, or when my great aunt, whom I always knew as Grandmother, came here as the bride of Ebenezer Robinson. The other table remained among the Shaw family possession in Pittsfield, up to 1910, or to the time Mary Shaw died and then it probably went to Edwin T. Shaw of Lowell, Mass.

The table coming to Meredith lingered about in the Robinson family for three generations. The table contracted the habit of tipping up and dumping its load on the slightest provocation and my father, John S. Sanborn, sometime in the forties removed the internal flop-up gear and put on a pine board stationery top.

As the table had only three legs, when it should have had four, it was easily overturned causing great commotion and damage to crockery and glassware. Like a broncho it must be evenly loaded and gently handled or it will lay down and roll over. Many is the time, years ago, when Frank Shaw, my sister, and Mrs. Ella (Robinson) Filgate, have tipped it over with dire results. It was in Aunt Lucy's spare room where they would occasionally steal in to play. I'm sorry to have it get back into the family, but everybody else seems pleased, so I suppose I might as well submit gracefully. When some innocent child runs against it in the front room, there will be trouble as in the old days.

About 14 years ago, our summer home was entered in the winter and considerable calamity was stolen and among the things taken was this table. For fourteen years my sister has waited and watched for the table to turn up and when found at the auction, was it any wonder she made a disturbance and rushed to me for assistance in getting it from the lady who had bid it off.

Had the determined woman known my situation as well as she did the right of possession, she might have held me up for a hundred and got it as easily as she did the ten. Then I'd had a sufficent amount invested to have looked well in sueing Messrs. Quimby and Marshall for selling stolen property.

Government says: Save peach stones, apricot, cherry, plum, prune and date stones, also walnut, hickory and butternuts and the shells of those nuts. Keep them separate and have them dried. They are needed in making carbon for gas masks. Don't neglect to do this. Save them. There will be a call for them later.

Tramps keep away for fear of being stripped of what few rags they now have. The Belgian children must be clothed anyhow. A coat and another pair of my pants are missing. Am soon to return to Norway where the Red Cross workers are not so furiously fierce.

A telescope has to be used in admiring the sunflowers. The stalks have grown so tall.

Twenty-nine stacks of beans are in the field. Wonder how many bushels we'll have?

Patriotic pole-beans have not as yet been disturbed.

Just because I have an abundance of beans this year, Dr. Harriman forbids my eating them. He also puts an embargo on my eatng meat. This pleases me.

Thirty bushels of potatoes on our farm and four bushels of little ones. I hear the hog grunt for joy.

Our potatoes are not rotting much this year. It's seldom you can get a farmer to admit his potatoes are rotting, but ours did last year. Charles laid it to the sawdust in the manure.

Coons, four-legged ones, are due for an assault in the cornfield. They do much damage. "Jack" is an extreme pacifist these days and takes little notice of night prowlers.

Arthur Smith has sold his potatoes, getting $2.00 a bushel or about $100. He is sure they'll not rot in his cellar this winter.

The tomatoes are going it badly and commence rotting about as soon as they begin turning red. Some are brought into the house and put in the window to ripen, but I notice they prefer to decay rather than turning red and ripening as they should. Wonder what's the trouble?

Will have to speak to Robt. W. Smith regarding it. He knows everything or ought to. He is the County Agent who permits and directs crops in growing and ripening in this vicinity. He corrects many wrong doings of nature by handing out pamphlets containing unpronouncable names which mystifies the farmer and makes me feel really ignorant when I attempt to read them.

Barbers in the city have gone up on the price of cutting hair. Jerry Holland has boosted his price from 25 to 35 cents and 10 cents extra for "pompadour cut" or 45 cents. A customer coming from the Gilford Mountain district recently requested a pompadour cut. Jerry, not wanting a misunderstanding at the time of settlement, told him that the price of that kind of cut had been increased to 45 cents.

The rural patron allowed he could stand it for once, as he had just brought in 48 quarts of blueberries and got $12.00 cash for them, whereas last year he would have got only $5.76. Last year 12 cents per quart and this year 25 cents. He could stand the rise in the cost of the "pompadour cut" all right this time and left the shop smiling over the increased cost of living.

Daniel Webster founded Franklin, N. H., and there is no doubt about it. Or why should his God-like presence sitting sideways on a hard-bottomed chair, under a tree appear on all the official documents of the city?

Daniel Webster once taught school in Fryeburg; Maine, and cut up other capers, but I've never seen his picture on local menu cards or on the town's official stationery, though I have often heard Fryeburg people proudly talk of his living there.

I have examined his writing in the Register of Deeds office and it is very much like that of other good penmen of that day and period. If you want to see it, ask Abby Ballard to show it to you. She knows where to find it.

Sim W. Conrad has returned to Franklin, N. H. The man who bought the Webster House a year ago or more, quit the business and Mr. Conrad took the hotel back July 23d, and he and Little Sim and crew are running it.

Mrs. Conrad has charge of Jones' Inn at Newport, Me., so the family are running two hotels at present. Mrs. Conrad expects to come to Franklin sometime next month when Sim's brother will take over the Newport house.

Our folks went to the Veteran's Weirs Reunion of a Thursday and sat in a closed car in the rain all day and called it a good time. Charles and Hattie visited in Burdan's Sharp Shooters camp with seven Old Vets and some women. It's really pitiful to see the tottering old soldiers who gather there. I stayed at home because of the rain.

Phineas Jaques was urged to run for office but he wouldn't permit it.

Bro. Towne of Franklin says the beans in our garden are patriotic because "they have gone over the top" of the poles. A wind will lay them flat as the poles are weak and the burden of pods great.

NO CONFISCATION OF SAVINGS BANK DEPOSITS

There seems to have been a very insidious propaganda carried on, obviously by secret agents of Germany, to the effect that savings bank deposits are to be confiscated. It is difficult to believe that any person in America would credit such a report for an instant. Secretary McAdoo says that the absurdity of these statements is manifest, but in order to allay the tears of a few who might be alarmed by such reports, he repeats officially that these rumors are wholly baseless.

There is but one thing that will in the least put in danger of confiscation the savings banks or other banks or invested in Liberty Bonds or any other investments, and that one thing is a German victory. It is not the American Government that our people should fear, but the German Government, and with the American soldiers fighting as they are in France and the American people supporting their Government as they are in America, the American people, their liberty, their rights, and their savings are safe. The United States instead of confiscating or endangering the savings and other property of its people is defending them and theirs with all the irrestible might of this invincible Republic.

"My Corns Peel Clean Off, With 'Gets-It'"!

of the world's magic and only genuine corn-peeler, "Gets-It." Then, and then only, will you be sure that your corn will loosen from your toe so that you can peel it right off gloriously easy with your fingers. Take no chances of continued pain and soreness—why use greasy, irritating salves, plasters that shift and press into the "quick," razors and "diggers" that make corns bleed and also grow faster? Use painless, easy, always sure "Gets-It." There's only one like it in the world—that's "Gets-It." Millions have tried and O. K.'d it for years. It never fails.

"Gets-It," the guaranteed, money-back corn-remover, the only sure way, costs but a trifle at any drug store. M'f'd by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Soldiers' Letters

The following letter was written by Lieut. William Towne Hanley of Co. D 30th Infantry, who is doing service in France, to his mother, Mrs. T. A. Hanley of Berlin, N. H. Several of Mr Hanley's previous letters have been published in the Advertiser and read with interest by relatives and friends.

Dear Folks: I must start this letter with apologies—one for using a pencil, one for the condition of this stationery and lastly for the delay in writing. The first two, may be answered by the one word "rain." Everything I own is water soaked or becoming so rapidly as we are in a woods temporarily. I must blame the Boche for preventing me from writing before, not only because they kept us so busy but also when things became quiet the boys wrote histories of their experiences and so I devoted my time to censoring.

As the censorship has been expanded a bit I will tell you some of the happenings. Doubtless you have read in the papers of the American drive July 15th. I heard the first shell that came over to our positions. It was exactly 12:05 A. M., July 15th and they continued to come in great quantities. In fact we heard later that this was the fiercest barrage since Verdun and I have no reason to doubt it. But the drive was quickly smashed and the Huns forced to turn tail. Imagine a forest, pitchy dark, with shells bursting in rapid succession and all over the place cutting trees in two and throwing off gas, strong smell of powder and peices of iron. The crashing of trees, intermingled with the roaring and bursting of shells and the blinding flashes of the explosions put our position in an indescribable state. The 4th of July celebration is no comparison for a moment. Sherman aptly classified war in his day, but I do not know how he would express his opinion of modern warfare. A person who could depict it, by pen or paint so accurately, that persons not involved in it actively could see everything that occurs, would be a wonder. Therefore, I must content myself by giving you a hint of conditions by common place words. But use your imagination to the limit and it will assist you some.

To continue, during that barrage, we were ordered out to our foremost position and we went to it right through shells, trees and all. The boys certainly shewed dug-outs and shelters ready for anything coming their way and when you stop to think of the noise and confusion, with an over powering blackness pervading the place, you will wonder, with me, how the boys were able to respond so nobly. It must be the unconquerable American spirit.

We were kept at our position until the Huns' drive was smashed, then we went to the rear to obtain a bath and clean clothes. Two days later we were rushed back to the front and after resting one night we advanced on the enemy. Our progress was so rapid we gained about one and one-half miles and Co. I was in advance of them all. In fact, we did so well that we have been highly commended by some of our higher officers as well as the French officials. As in the previous bombardment the boys did wonderfully well. We would have kept on advancing but the Hun had placed some machine guns in our way and we were obliged to hold up until the obstructions were removed.

My platoon took the first prisoner, a young man about twenty-three years old. He seemed real pleased to be in our hands and appeared to be very much impressed with American soldiers. We are now resting up and taking things easy. We have earned the rest I am sure.

I received a letter from you dated February and containing some snap shots of Babe. Have been getting your mail for the past five months regularly but the February one must have been mislaid. If I am fortunate, I will receive all my mail some day. Must close now. Loads of love to you all. Bill.

P. S. Have been recommended for promotion. Don't know as I will get it or not. Hope so anyway. Bill.

Mrs Eugene D. Millett of Norway received the following letter from her son, Ralph O. Millett who is in the 3rd. Battery. F. A. R. C. Camp Hunt A. P. O. 778, American E. F.

Dear Mother: Just a few lines to let you know that I am well. Hope you are all well. Suppose everything is getting alone fine there. Hope to be back there soon. Will write soon and as often as possible. We are in a fine place here. When we moved we went in box cars from place to place, as you have seen in moving pictures. This is a fine life. Well I guess it will soon be over. They are still driving them back fast and capturing many Germans. Willl close now from your son, Ralph.

* * * * * *

Dear Mother: Just a few lines to let you know that I am feeling fine in this new place. We are quarantined now. We have been drilling to-day, the first time for about a month. It seems good to have a chance to move around. I suppose you have got a ten thousand dollar policy from the U. S. This is a fairly good place here, will probably stay here for well. I met that Philbrick fellow that went from Paris when I did. He is in the same battery that I am now. He has been to Jackson, too. I haven't seen him since I left Slocum until tonight. He is a corporal now. Well write as often as possible Hope you are all well. Guess I will close now from your son, Ralph O. Millett.

Mrs. Winnie Hall of Norway Lake has received the following letters from her son, Elden D. Hall, Co. C. 317th Field Sig. Bn. American E. F. via, New York. Aug. 3rd.

Dear Mother: Have a few minutes before retreat which ordinarily would not begin to be time enough to write a real letter but one needs only a very short time here to write all that is permissible particularly after he has written one letter which always contains a description of the place, its people etc., and I am sure all these were embodied in my last letter however, I will have so much more to tell about when I get home which won't be long; I am planning already on having Xmas dinner with you and possibly Thanksgiving which won't be hard to take I can assure you.

We had been here less than three days before the Y. M. C. A. had a good sized hut in the town or village square where we are all welcome anytime we are off duty. The short time and the fact that our battalion is the only organization here. Will give you an idea of what the Y. M. is doing over here. I guess that without exception everywhere there is an organization, however small it is there is a Y. M. We are able to buy such as chocolate, cooking and smoking materails as it is possible to get.

They also furnish writing paper and a place to write our letters in fact it is the only place we have to go or any amusements. They are going to give us a minstrel show of some kind this evening.

Our band gives concerts quite often here in the square; two or three evenings this week and one this P. M. and probably will again to-morrow. It has gotten to be a mighty good band much better than when we left Devens a whole lot of the credit being due to a new leader.

We have gotten down to regular work now although my time this week has been more or less broken up as I had the guard Wednesday night and Thursday and had the same men on general fatigue the following day.

We had regular weekly inspection this morning which took nearly the whole forenoon and this afternoon we all went down to the brook for a swin which everyone enjoyed.

Hope it won't be many more days before I get a letter from you and learn how everything is at home. I was never feeling better and hope you all are.

Lots of love to all, Elden.

* * * * * *

Aug. 11.

My Dear Mother: Please do not think that it is negligence on my part for not writing more often then once a week as I would write every day if things were the same as in the States. I held that record when I was at Devens as you know.

Let me assure you that there is no need for you to worry at all about me even if you do not get a letter often from me. I am enjoying the best of health in fact I was never better. Several nights we are (tres fatigue) as the Frenchman says after a good days work but with eight and one-half hours of good sleep every night no one regrets having done a good days work.

Last Thursday was the first time and the only time up to-date that any of our fellows have received any mail since we left the States and you can take my word that everyone was some excited until he found out whether or not he was lucky enough to draw one; unfortunately I was not one of the lucky ones but am not alone as there were less than fifty for our whole company of 280 men. I try to console myself now knowing there are many due me and hope to be one of the lucky ones when we get another bunch of mail which is not very regular just now, having had only this one delivery since we arrived.

We are enjoying some wonderful weather most every day now. We have had one rainy day this week but in general it has been ideal for our work.

Monday of this week found us settled down to a hard and fast schedule and everyone is getting in some good work with perhaps a few exceptions of men who are commonly known as goldbricks and would never work anywhere. Just now I am indirectly responsible for the appearance of and to a certain degree the progress of thirty men which is a pleasure when everything is going along smoothly. A few of the fellows from the battalion and incidentally I might say that they all came from our company who considered themselves endowed with entertaining ability put on a show in the Y. M. C. A. hut last night and whose who saw it said it was very good considering the little they had to do with and short time for preparation. I didn't see it myself, four of us were making a few experiments on some new apparatus which we have only had a short time; we still have a few more nights coming to us before we get it going good.

We went down to the river this morning for our weekly bath and we sure had a wonderful swim regardless of the fact that we could almost pick ice out of the stream the water was so cold.

I am outside the Y. M. C. A. hut writing this letter and the band is giving a concert which is being enjoyed by all of the natives as well as our fellows; it is some band now.

Hope this will find every one at home well.

Lots of love to all, Elden.

This letter was written by Cook Orville Palmer, July 23,'18, who is in Co. D. Some where in France to Mrs. J. L. Witham of Norway.

Dear Mother: A few lines this afternoon, I have just got my officers fed, so I have a couple of hours before starting supper.

I don't know as Lester is home yet or not but he has been gone now for a few days. He got his orders just a few minutes before he was ordered over the top, believe me, mother, he was lucky. He wanted me to be sure and write just as soon as I found out how his friend, Philip Smith came out after his trip over the top. Tell him that he is sound as a bullet. Believe me, mother, they certainly did go over the top and did hardly stop until they had taken about eight or ten miles, it was some drive for the first time. They are just putting them right over the hills now. They are most back where we was our first time six months ago. I think we will pull through to Berlin. Well, Mother, Lester did not want to go back but he had to and he was lucky. Tell Lester that the Segt. in C. Co. which was supposed to go with him did not get his order soon enough and went over the top and was one of the first to get killed. Tell him that there was not many killed in our Co., but quite a few wounded. They were most all machine gun bullets and the wounds were most all in the legs or arms. There were lots of lucky ones. When they came in their shirts or pants would be full of bullet holes or sharpnel.

Well, Mother, I will have to close as I have lots of letters to write. Will try and write later. With love from your boys, Bushie and Scott, Best regards to all the folks.

Letter dated Aug. 19. Received from Private Frank L. Briggs of 101st Regment U. S. Engineers Co. E. American Expeditionary Forces.

Dear Mother: I am at a convalescent camp and expect to leave here the last of this week. I am feeling fine and am anxious to get back with the boys again. I have just received eight or nine letters from you, and was glad to hear you had joined the Red Cross at the Mills. I also got letters from Gram, Hazel and Elroy. These were the first letters I had for two months. I hope you get my mail better than that. You said in one of your letters, that I didn't tell you how I got hit.

I was stationed in a little town, about one-half mile from the front line and the Germans tried to break through our lines and they shelled the town and hit the dugout I was in three times but I didn't get hit then but the shells blew the dugout all to pieces, so I had to get out and when I did, I got hit with a piece of shell that exploded near by. It knocked me down but I got right up and got into another dugout and in one-half an hour I was in a Hospital ten miles behind the lines and feeling fine. I got hit just below the elbow in my right arm but the piece of shell went through the muscle and didn't hit the bone. I picked the piece out of my left arm and the doctor took the piece out of my head right over my left ear. I am just as good as ever now, only I'm not quite as strong in my right arm, but I'll be just as strong eventually. I must close—love to all Lawrence.

Received Sept. 9th from Private Frank L. Briggs of 101st Reg. U. S. Engineers Co. E. American Expeditionary Forces.

Dear Folks: I expect to get a pair of glasses to-day and start for a training camp to-morrow or next day. I expect to find quite a few letters from you and Hazel when I get back to the Company. I am just dying to hear from you folks as the last letters I received from you were written in May. Last Sunday another fellow from my company and I went to see a fellow in the hospital and while there we saw a nurse who had a friend in our Co. She was mighty glad to hear how her friend was and when we left. She asked if we wanted any money and of course we said no, but we were dead broke. We said goodbye and started for Camp when we had gone a little way we looked back and saw her coming toward us so we went back to meet her. She put out both hands and each of us took hold of a hand and believe me without us knowing it she had given us each forty francs and begged us to keep it and spend it as we liked. That is the kind of girl worth fighting for and you can just bet I shall see her again and pay her back the forty francs. Her name is Helen O. Day and she is a true American girl from the good old town of Roslindale, Mass. Well, I must stop singing her praises and go on. The last I heard from Bill he was working in the kitchen—but safe and sound. I must close and go to mess.

Is your home protected?

If not, can you afford to take the chances of its destruction?

You may have been spared up to this time, but give it a moment's thought and see whether it has not been through your good fortune rather than through your good management.

You have no assurance that lightning will continue to spare you.

It has visited your neighbors. Your turn may come next. If it should visit your home, it means certain destruction of property. It may mean sudden death to you or to some member of your family.

You cannot shift the responsibility. It is a matter for you to decide. Face the issue squarely and ask yourself the question whether you are playing the part of the prudent man in neglecting to guard your home and dear ones from the lightning stroke which may come at any time.

You have the highest assurances that can be given the Dodd System of lightning rods does give protection.

It is a reasonable system. The demonstrations put its effectiveness beyond question.

The position that the insurance companies have taken in the matter should have great weight with you.

Their interests are to preserve property. They have no personal interests in Dodd & Struthers.

Your interests are the same. You want to preserve your property—and your life and the lives of your family.

The insurance companies are encouraging you to protect your property.

But they cannot force you to act. It is a question for you and a question of NOW.

After awhile may be too late.

Will you answer the question to your own best interest?

Then if in doubt, telephone to A. W. Walker & Son for a demonstration, and estimate on your buildings.

Bird's American Twin Shingles.

Barber's Phoenix Green Slate Shingles.

Barrett's Everlastic Multi-Shingles.

We still have in stock nearly two cars of these shingles that we are selling at the price of a year ago. The cost is but little higher than ordinary wooden shingles. Having from two to four shingles in a strip, they can be laid much cheaper and are more durable besides making a much more ornamental roof, resembling tile. What is much more important, they are so slow burning as to be practically fireproof. A wood shingle roof is a firetrap and is not allowed in many localities governed by fire regulations. Now is the time to lay these shingles before cold weather. When they are gone, there will be no more at the present price.

have a few tennis shoes left, in men's and boys' sizes, which are genuine bargains—ask to see them when you are in.

We also have good prices on a few summer shirts which ought to be sold before the heavier fall and winter shirts are put on the counter. Overalls and frocks are not exactly bargains now-a-days, but they are a saving for more expensive clothing and we have several weights and colors at very reasonable prices compared with the prices of cotton cloth and labor that goes into the manufacturing of such goods.

In groceries, we have a very good assortment of canned goods and it is a good time to get a few cans home for fall and winter use, as they are sure to be higher in prices later on. Coffee and tea in several grades, spices, mustard, Arm & Hammer and Three Crow Soda; this latter soda has some money in the packages. Also pure cream tartar, which is very high; and two kinds of cream tartar substitute, very nice and a great saving in cost. Flour and flour substitutes, a very good assortment to choose from.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, our Heavenly Father has once more seen fit to enter our ranks and has taken unto himself one of our much esteemed members, Brother Abram Anderson

One precious to our hearts has gone,
The voice we loved is stilled.
The place made vacant in our Lodge
Can never more be filled.
Our Father in His wisdom called
The life His love had given
And though on earth the body lies,
The soul is safe in Heaven.

Resolved, that we extend to the family of our brother our sincere sympathy and commend them for consolation to Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved, that this testimonial of respect be recorded on our books, a copy sent to the family of our departed brother and a copy sent to the Norway Advertiser for publication.

Economy Hints

A penny saved is a penny earned.—Benjamin Franklin.

FOR those who possess fine old lace it may be well to suggest a good method for the renovating of the same at home. If so old as to be very tender the lace should be sent to a professional cleaner, who may also be a lace mender, but if in fairly good shape the lace may be immersed in warm suds made from some pure white soap and left to soak for an hour or so.

The lace should then be put through two or more rinsings, the final one to contain a pinch of borax, which gives just the right degree of stability to the lace, and it also has a bleaching propensity. It is a mistake to add bluing, for no matter how white and fresh real laces are they never have the bluish tinge which is always an indication of imitation laces which have been laundered in the usual way.

A delicate cream or even an ivory tone is something to be desired in old laces, and unless one has a particular fondness for dead white it will be found that the cream tone is infinitely more becoming. Therefore use no bluing.

To dry the lace use either a good sized bottle which has been wrapped about with strips of canton flannel or old linen and on this very carefully wind the lace, picking out the delicate edges and if necessary using extremely fine pins or needles here and there to keep the lace from narrowing or curling while it dries.

Sometimes an ironing board will be found to do just as well as the bottle.

KITCHEN SYSTEM.

How to Equip the Kitchen Properly and Eliminate Confusion.

Have you ever gone into a home or visited in one where the household was in a hubbub? Everything seemed quiet until an hour before meal time and then there came a terrible gale that blew from parlor to kitchen.

You probably wondered at first as to the reason for this. But when you visited the kitchen the difficulty explained itself. The kitchen had been neglected—in short, it lacked many of its proper tools. It was not standardized, and this neglect was shown in the utter confusion and disorder.

There are a number of fuels for cooking, such as wood, coal, gas, kerosene and electricity. Each individual housekeeper must decide for herself which fuel she prefers, but she should have two well equipped stoves if she can afford it. If she has but one it certainly should be properly equipped.

Among the articles to be kept near the stove are the teakettle, the salt box, the pepper shaker, the flour dredger, the pot covers, the large cast iron frying pan, the small wrought iron frying pan, matchbox, dripping pan, griddle and stove cloths.

Among the dishes to be kept near the table are pitchers, tea canister, coffeepot, measuring cups, potato masher, biscuit cutter, lemon squeezer, rolling pin and chopping bowl. You may provide yourself with all these things and waste much time when it comes to the actual cooking and baking. If your kitchen is large have two tables. One can be wooden, covered with an oilcloth top, and the other you can fold and unfold and move to any part of the room you like.

In the large kitchen drawer keep a knife box outfit. You will need all these utensils in cooking and you cannot take the time to wash them as you go along. These are three knives, three forks, one dozen aluminium spoons, cake turner, apple corer, vegetable knife and knife sharpener. Then you should have plenty of dishes in which to set food until you are ready to use it. Be sure to have containers for cooked food and supplies, such as a bread box, cake box and jars.

The miscellaneous things are not to be neglected. A clock, scissors, ice pick, garbage can and coffee can all have their places in the kitchen. Many of these utensils appear as nonessentials, but they are all helps.

How to Use the Fillet Crochet Medallions In Pillow Cover.

A most effective finish for a linen pillow, in which you wish to use the insets of fillet crochet medallions, would be a plain edge of fillet crochet mesh, about five blocks wide. The cushion should be finished first, so that the exact measurements could be ascertained, then the edge should be crocheted to fit the cushion and sewed to it where the back and front are joined.

Arrange the medallions one in the center and one at each corner with an insertion of plain outer motifs with an insertion of plain two mesh fillet crochet.

The plain fillet mesh is seen in the newest crochet trimmed pieces as a finish and is used for scarfs, as well as pillows.

How to Make a Circular Shoulder Cape For Summer.

A charming little wrap for wear on summer evenings is a circular shoulder cape of satin, double faced by preference, made elbow length and bordered with several rows of maribout all the way round. It needs no other decoration or collar.

In another column is an ad. for the sale of cartridges and loaded shells by E. F. Bicknell of Norway. See ad.

Mrs. Pinkerton's first question was about the gloves.

"Did you exchange them?" she asked.

"No," said Pinkerton. "I didn't."

"There," she complained, "I might have known you would forget it. How careless! I told you the very last thing before you left the house to be sure to attend to it. Really, I don't see how men can be so thoughtless."

"I didn't forget," said Pinkerton. "I tried to change them, but they wouldn't take the things back."

"Wouldn't—take—them—back?" she said. "Why not?"

"They said they were soiled."

"Soiled? Well, of all things! If they are they got soiled in their own store. I didn't soil them. I have never had them on my hands. I couldn't get them on. They were half a size too small. They gave me the wrong number. Why didn't you tell them so?"

"I did."

"Who did you tell?"

"The clerk and the floorwalker and everybody who would listen to me."

"And what did they say?"

"They laughed."

"The impudent creatures! I'll never buy a cent's worth in that store again, you see if I do."

"That's just what I said," Pinkerton put in. "I said you never would."

"And what did they say to that?"

"They laughed again."

"Well, that settles it. I never will buy anything there now. Where are the gloves?"

"In my pocket."

"Let me have them, please. Soiled, indeed! I'll see if they are."

Mrs. Pinkerton unwrapped the package. As she took out the gloves she blushed slightly.

"Well," she said.

"Well?" echoed Pinkerton. "What's wrong?"

"N-nothing much," she said, "only this is an old pair of gloves. I cleaned them last week with gasoline. I made a mistake and sent them back instead of the pair I bought yesterday."—New York Herald.

Look to Your Own Self.

Be not angry that you cannot make others what you wish them to be, since you cannot make yourself what you wish to be.—Thomas a-Kempis.

Mended His Manners.

A certain English officer is noted for his ready wit and quickness in repartee. In the very early days of his career he was ordered to Bombay and was attached to the staff of the then commander in chief as aid-de-camp.

Shortly after his arrival at a function at the government house a new military secretary who, in the conscious pride of his new position, had a hearty contempt for subalterns of all degrees, with a glassy stare through his eyeglasses offered him two fingers to shake.

The A. D. C., quite unabashed, looked at him for a moment or two and then said genially:

"Hang it all, major, the governor gives me three!"

The whole room was convulsed, and the military secretary, now a colonel, profited by the hint and mended his manners, but he never forgave the A. D. C.—London Tit-Bits.

The Unwilling Worm.

Damon Runyon and Sid Mercer, New York sporting writers, were fishing in Great South bay one Saturday afternoon in the autumn. Mercer caught fish regularly. Runyon had never a nibble. Finally he reeled in.

"Come on, Sid; let's quit," he said.

"Why?" inquired Mercer. "There's an hour yet before dark."

"I think I might as well quit," said Runyon sadly; "my worm's not trying!"—Saturday Evening Post.

One of Choate's Retorts.

During Joseph Choate's early practice he was opposed in a certain case by a hot tempered attorney who possessed more brawn than mental acumen. In the progress of the case Choate's adversary wholly departed from his self control and threatened physical hurt to his opponent. "I can whip six like you," asserted the lawyer. Choate looked at him with a profound calm contempt. "When I was a boy," he returned, "my father owned a bull. He was a wonder to fight. He could whip all the cattle in the neighborhood and did it. But at that," concluded Choate, "he couldn't win a lawsuit."

NEW LIST OF WHEAT FLOUR SUBSTITUTES IS ANNOUNCED

Retailers May Sell on Basis of One Pound Substitutes to Four Pounds Wheat Flour.

Orono, Maine, September — Whole rice, rolled oats, corn starch, hominy, and corn grits can no longer be sold as substitutes for wheat flour, according to a statement given out by the Food Adminstration in reply to inquiries from grocers.

A new list of substitutes was announced when the new flour saving rules went into effect September 1st. Following is the official list as announced by the Maine Division of the Food Administration:

Barley flour, corn meal. corn flour, kaffir flour, milo flour, feterita flour, feterita meal, rice flour, oat flour peanut flour, potato flour, sweet potato flour, bean flour and buckwheat flour.

Retailers may sell any of these substitutes with standard wheat flour on the basis of one pound of substitute to four pounds of wheat flour. Retailers are required to keep barley flour, corn flour, and corn meal in stock to sell as substitutes so the consumer may have them for mixture in making Victory Bread. Householders are asked to use all the substitutes in making bread. Corn meal used in making corn bread should be purchased separately according to the voluntary conservation plan.

Rye flour also may be sold as a substitute with wheat flour on the basis of two pounds of rye flour and three pounds of wheat flour. Whole wheat and graham flour containing at least 95 per cent of the wheat berry may be sold without substitutes.

ITS FUTURE VALUE.

The value of conservation in the home reaches far beyond the present war crisis. Its effect on American housekeeping will be felt for at least a generation to come.

Keeping house has been exalted to a profession. The purchase and preparation of food in the family kitchen not only has become worthy of, but demands thought and training. Mothers are seeing to it that their daughters shall learn how to market and cook with intelligence and economy.

VICTORY MIXED FLOURS.

The new Victory Mixed Flours will be of four kinds; mixed wheat and barley flour, mixed wheat and corn flour, mixed wheat, barley and corn flour and mixed wheat and rye flour. Mixed wheat and barley flour will be in the proportion of one pound of barley flour to four pounds of wheat flour; mixed wheat and corn flour will be in the proportion of one pound of corn flour and four pounds of wheat flour; mixed wheat, barley and corn flour in the proportion of one pound of corn flour and one pound of barley flour to eight pounds of wheat flour; and mixed wheat flour in the proportion of not less than two pounds of rye flour with three pounds of wheat flour.

These flours will be labelled with the contents and must not be sold at more than the standard wheat flour. When buying the mixed flours or whole wheat or graham flour containing 95 per cent of the wheat berry, no wheat substitutes need be bought.

The rules limiting the sales by retailers of wheat flour to an eighth of a barrel in cities and a quarter of a barrel in sparsely settled districts have been rescinded and the previous rule limiting millers, retailers and bakers to thirty days' supply of flour is changed to permit a sixty days' supply.

Regulations provide that a dealer may not sell wheat flour and wheat flour substitutes to any person in excess of his reasonable requirements for a period of sixty days without the consent of an official of the Food Administration.

THE THING WE ARE FIGHTING.

The statement was made recently by a German born woman having two sons and seven nephews in the United States Army. It shows how first-hand knowledge of the workings of the German military party whets the appreciation of American ideals. She says, "I am German born. My father and his fathers before him for centuries lived in Prussia and worked hard all their lives. Not one of them ever came to own enough Prussian soil to fill a tin can. When we were grown my father came with us to America. Every one of his four boys has worked just as hard as their forefathers worked in Prussia, but every one of them has become rich because he worked in a country where a free man has some chance. I have two sons and seven nephews in the Army. One of my boys is in France. We know what these Prussian military autocrats want to do in the world, and we are glad to fight hard to prevent it."

Private John Jeselskis of Rumford is reported as missing in action.

HUDSON MOTOR CARS

"Be it resolved that it is our plan to produce only those automobiles during the period of the war as are necessary to clear out the stock on hand and contracted for, which we estimate will be accomplished not later than January 1, 1919, and that thereafter our plant resources and our entire manufacturing energy are to be devoted to war work."

Board of Directors of the Hudson Motor Car Company
August 28th, 1918.

We Would Not Have It Otherwise

Winning the war is the one big job that confronts every man, woman and child in America.

Everything else must be sacrificed to that one great end.

Hudson has for some time been devoting part of its large factory to war work, and while the decision to go on a 100 per cent. basis affects no one more seriously than the Hudson dealer, it commands only our heartiest approval.

Under present circumstances we would not have it otherwise.

We rejoice that the Hudson factory can and will play its full part in carrying the banners of liberty forward to victory.

Our hope is that this move may exercise the greatest possible influence in bringing the world struggle to a prompt and triumphal close for Democracy.

So far as we are concerned we are proud to bear our share of the sacrifice.

To our good friends and customers our message now is one of congratulations and reassurance.

Although the manufacture of Hudson cars will soon cease, the supply of replacement parts now on hand is adequate to meet all needs over a long period of time.

We know it is no longer necessary to suggest prompt action to prospective owners of Super-Sixes. Everyone must realize now, if never before, that for each Hudson Super-Six still to be made before production ceases entirely there will be a dozen buyers.

We hope that it will not be many months before we can have the pleasure of making another announcement—a post-war announcement—saying: "We are ready again to take orders for the new Super-Six—a car as worthy of your confidence as its predecessor."

James J. Storrow, New England Fuel Administrator, says:

We ask you to impress on the householders of your community the necessity of being extremely frugal in the use of coal. In general, coal saving is promoted in the ordinary dwelling by storm windows and doors.

We Say:

Orders for storm windows and doors are already being placed in order to secure them in ample time. The demand is bound to be large and prices as low as they will be with the chance of being higher. It takes some little time to make them and now is the time to order.

SHELL OUT-DON'T GRUMBLE

Say, Lookyhere. You have been grouching and grumbling and cussing and making yourself and others miserable for some time. Now stop it. If you are an employer you have grumbled because your help demands big pay, and you can't get good ones, and they leave and go into the army or the munition factories, and you can't stock or make shipments or secure fuel or in any way do business like you did a few years ago.

If you are working for somebody else he won't raise you enough to make up for the advanced prices and he expects to do two people's job because he is short handed.

If you are poor you can't pay the present prices for food and clothing and fuel.

If you are rich they take your money in taxes and won't let you ride on Sunday.

If you are honest and hard working you are annoyed by strikes; and if you belong to the I. W. W. you are in danger of making a long visit in the federal prison.

Yes, you have lots of things to use as an excuse for growling. But—you have n't seen your property burned or your home blown up or your family shot or driven away. No drunken German soldiers have nailed you to your barn door. You can still get a little sugar. You can go to bed with no fear of being blown out by a can of dynamite dropped on you by a foreign airship.

Think it over. See if the other fellow hasn't as many troubles as you, and perhaps a few more. And then get ready to sign the dotted line on the next Liberty loan card for an amount twice as big as you thought was your limit.

You can't make conditions return to normal by complaining. You have got to fight; either with a gun or with your dollars. And the harder you hit now the sooner it will be over.

TOWN FARMS, CANTON AND PARIS

The quarterly bulletin of the State Board of Charities and Corrections speaks as follows of the town farms at Paris and Canton:

Paris Town Farm

The superintendent is John Terrill. Salary $500 per annum; experience six years.

The almshouse is not used as a house of correction. Tramps are fed and lodged. Quarters for this purpose, authority for their admission, selectmen.

Cleanliness, good. House in good repair, outer building needs repair. Furniture, sufficient. Beds and bedding, sufficient. Sanitation, spring water, good ventilation. Care of food supplies, pantry.

Assignment of work to inmates, man helps under supervision.

Improvements since the previous inspection, bath room, hard wood floors in kitchen and dining room; sheathed kitchen and dining room overhead. Fixed up comfortable tramps' room. Tramps not made to work.

Adults present, males under 60, one. Total, one.

Three are now away, but likely to return at any time. One of these is somewhat insane.

Canton Town Farm

Superintendent and matron are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Spiller, experience 3 years.

Recommendations and suggestions: The barn looks dilapidated. The porch needs repair and the house "jacking."

The almshouse is not used as a house of correction. The matron objects to lodging tramps as the only place is a room over the kitchen where they have easy access to rest of the house. The selectmen think she will not be troubled with any more, as they will be required to work.

The cleanliness is excellent but the repair is bad and furniture insufficient. The beds and care of food supplies are very good.

The sanitation, only one earth closet and that is too low. The superintendent has made covered drains that carry water from closet to hillside farther away, but there are unsightly pools in the barn yards which face the house. The cellar is wet, as water runs in from the hillside. The superintendent made a rough platform over the floor.

Improvements since the previous inspection, four rooms have been papered and painted. A well of delicious water has been dug in suitable place but water does not enter the house.

Inmates have no sitting room and must live entirely with the family.

VOLUNTEER RESERVES

By KATHERINE THAYER HODGES

Written for the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee of New England

That Dorothy's spirits were not up to concert pitch was plainly evident as she picked her way in the late afternoon through the crowded city streets.

"It is not a question of 'To be or not to be' a Liberty Bond-holder, as Mr. Young said," she declared with a toss of her pretty head. "There is no question about it. I cannot buy even a fifty-dollar Liberty Bond, and that ends it."

The innocent but disturbing element which was responsible for this outburst was a little pasteboard box which Dorothy's employer had handed to her only a few minutes before, with the result that conscience was fairly beating a tattoo on her heart-strings. She really wanted to do something to help the boys "over there", but how could she? she argued. Yet every time she heard the aggrevating hollow thud of the empty box as it swung in the silk bag on her arm, she thought of an old but dainty white silk stocking tucked away back in her bureau drawer with three crisp ten-dollar bills in its toe.

When two years before Dorothy had secured a position which meant a desk and a swivel chair in a large office, it seemed as if she had reached the pinnacle of success as a business woman, but she soon found that eighteen dollars a week did not go very far. Indeed, for months the height of her ambition had been to save enough money for a new blue suit for fall, and she thought of it every time her eye caught sight of the bright new ring on her finger—blue would look so nice beside Ray's khaki. She had pinched and squeezed every dime until the eagle fairly squawked—and now the goal was so near—oh, she just couldn't give it up! No, anything but that!

"Extra! Extra! American Army in Great Smash! Extra!" cried the newsboys up and down the street.

Dorothy shuddered as the words were suddenly visualized and she saw on the battlefields of France our boys, fighting for love of justice and humanity. How could they nobly bear their part in the terrible conflict, were it not for the remembrance of the beloved home land,—their confidence that all loyal Americans are with them in the saving and giving which will win the war.

"I might just as well face this thing first as last, for it begins to look as if it really were a question," the girl declared aloud as, reaching her room, she threw her hat and gloves onto the table and herself into a chair by the open window.—"Dorothy Bolton, are you a slacker, or are you not?" was her indignant demand.

Instantly the rockers of the little wicker chair squeaked, "You are! You are! You are!"

"You saucy thing," laughed Dorothy; "but I'm afraid you're speaking the truth," she added ruefully. She reached for her bag, drew out the little pasteboard box, and turned it over slowly. "Red, white and blue," she murmured softly, "The colors of our beloved country,—somehow they mean more than they ever did before." Then the words "Woman's Liberty Loan Committee of New England," caught her eye. Surely women were coming into their own in this work, she thought. Though they may not go into the trenches and fight, they can work and save and give as well as the men.

For a few moments Dorothy sat very still, looking out over the tops of the buildings with their smoking chimneys, past the tall elm trees on Boston Common, until her eyes rested on the gilded dome of the Capitol on Beacon Hill. To her awakening thought it was as a tower of strength, reflecting the principles of pure democracy and liberty for which our government stands.

Suddenly she started from her chair, and a look of dismay crossed the pretty face.

"Sacrifice!" she exclaimed, "What have I been thinking about! Of course it isn't a sacrifice to wear our old clothes; it's just a great and glorious opportunity to do our bit. Why, I'd be ashamed to look Ray in the face if I could be so selfish when he is offering his life. Fifty dollars seems a good deal, but the thirty I have will be a good start toward it, and the rest will be only a trifle at a time." Glancing once more at the little box, she begun to hum the lines that met her eye:

"First a nickel, then a dime,
Save the pennies every time;—"

Dorothy stopped suddenly as a new thought came to her. "Why, it isn't actually giving the money after all," she said to herself, "it's just letting Uncle Sam have the use of what we save, and in time we'll have it all back with interest. Like all really good things it works both ways, and after the war is over I can have two suits from what I save. And maybe, yes maybe," she added, "the furnishing of a home for two. That can be my 'bit' while Ray is doing his in France—and now for a look at the old clothes."

"Tap, tap," sounded on Dorothy's door a few minutes later, and her chum Marion from the next floor, armed with her knitting and a box of fudge, came in and flounced down in the little wicker chair.

"What in the world are you doing with all those clothes, Dot? Not packing for home yet, are you?"

Dorothy laughed gaily. "No, oh no; just 'taking stock', as you saleswomen call it. You see I'm getting very businesslike."

"Altogether too much so for my limited understanding," retorted her friend. "Come, what's it all about, Dorothy?"

But that perverse little lady was in no hurry to satisfy her friend's curiosity. "For once in my life," she teased, "I'm going to be in the height of the style,—fashionable to an extreme. I've joined the Reserve Regiment of Volunteer Clothing Savers. Behold the badge of honor!" and Dorothy waved her hands dramatically toward the array of worn but fairly presentable suits and dresses on her bed, and laughed heartily at Marion's mystified look.

"This regiment is perfectly great," she went on, "and it's going to be a mighty popular one, for every woman who joins it must qualify by the wearing of her last year and the year before's clothes;—performing a perfectly heroic deed of bravery! The only drawback is that their uniforms of made-overs will be undecorated with stripes or medals, and Pershing will never review this branch of his reserves. But we'll march with the boys to victory just the same," she concluded earnestly.

For a few moments neither of the girls spoke, then Dorothy went on, speaking very low. "You know, Marion, I've waked up at last to the realization that I'm an American woman, and I'm going to be one in the true sense of the term. This is my government, and its problems are my problems, too. Even if I am just a little wee part of it, I cannot shirk that part. The least I can do is to make over my old clothes, and lend Uncle Sam all I can save."

Marion smiled ruefully. "And stop eating fudge," she interrupted.

But Dorothy hurried on. "Mother always said it was an art to make over old clothes, and I think it is a good thing to have it revived and made fashionable. Why I was reading only yesterday that one of the highest salaried women in the country actually takes pride in saying that she has not had a new dress in three years."

"Probably she had more to make over than most of us," argued Marion, as she reached for another piece of fudge.

Dorothy smiled, "Most of us have enough to get along with if we have the real spirit of patriotism back of us. Here I've been making myself think that I could not get along without a new suit this fall, but just see what I'm going to do," she explained eagerly. "This white serge circular skirt is perfectly good, but it's so wide I haven't worn it for ages; by having it dyed blue to match this one-piece serge dress, and making it into a military cape, I'll have a suit after all, and the cape can be worn with any dress. This black and white striped plaited skirt is badly worn and soiled around the hem, but it will clean beautifully and will be just the thing for a lining."

Marion gasped, partly in admiration, but half incredulously. "The idea is perfectly splendid," she admitted, "but frankly, Dot, the dress looks to me impossible, almost—if you'll pardon me—a relic of mediaeval times."

"I'll acknowledge," answered Dorothy with a gay laugh, "that the blue serge is a dress with a past, but also one with countless possibilities. The skirt is wide enough to make a narrow foundation skirt, but as the new models are much shorter the extra lengths will make a straight apron tunic for the front and back, reaching from the shoulders, and I'll finish the sides and across the bottom with a four inch band of black satin cut from the old coat mother left when she was here. With the neck cut pointed in front, and a large collar evolved from this white crepe de chine waist, which has been a candidate for the scrap-heap for some time, I'll wager no one will ever dream of its past career of usefulness and activity. Of course", she added quickly, as she saw that Marion was not quite convinced, "the serge will be turned, for—see—it is like new on the wrong side."

Dorothy stopped for breath, and her companion laughed. "Where did you get your clever ideas, Dot? You are a wonder!"

Dorothy's face flushed with pleasure. I'm not the least bit of a wonder," she denied modestly; "in fact, I'm quite ashamed I didn't see all these possibilities before, for I'm truly grateful for an old-fashioned mother who helped me develop some practical ideas.

"This dress, too," the girl continued eagerly, as she shook out a dark gray satin skirt with chiffon tunic, "seemed almost too narrow and worn to do anything with, as it has done me good service for two years now, but I can get a lovely long scarf out of it, lined with the chiffon and with two strips of marabout from this old neckpiece across the ends. Out of what is left I'll make a hat with a satin crown and chiffon brim, and with no expense but the cost of the frame. Behold me fully equipped. mademoiselle, and all my own handiwork!"

"But when are you going to do all this work?" Marion's tone was slightly skeptical. "You are a busy stenographer, and you know how little energy one has left for scheming and sewing after a long, hard day at the office."

"You remember I'm to have two weeks' vacation," said Dorothy. "Instead of spending a week at the beach, as I had planned, that money will go into my Liberty Loan box and I'll spend all the time at home on the farm and do my sewing while I'm visiting with mother."

When the Liberty Loan tithing-box was opened two months later, Dorothy found she had saved almost enough money to finish paying for the fifty-dollar bond, started with the thirty dollars from the old stocking toe and the twelve dollars that a week at the beach would have cost.

"What is more," she confided to Marion, "now that I've found I can save, 'First a nickel, then a dime,' if I make up my mind to do it, I'm taking another bond on the dollar down and dollar a week plan, to go with the one father gave me as a nest-egg toward the home Raymond and I hope to have when the war is over."

"I haven't that to look forward to," said Marion soberly, "and I'm not clever enough to make over things, but no more nickels or dimes are going to slip through my fingers for sodas and movies until I've saved at least a dollar a week out of my salary for a Liberty Bond. Here's my hand on it!"

"Oh, Ray! I'm so thankful I waked up in time to have a part in this Liberty Loan drive," Dorothy said to her khaki-clad escort as they walked through the park the night before he sailed for France. "I realize as I never did before what a wonderful privilege it is to be an American woman in these days of worldwide sorrow. We must make sacrifices," and she looked at him fondly, "but out of these trials will come sunshine and happiness for all the world!"

The man in khaki looked at the girl at his side, dressed for the first time in the "uniform" of the Reserve Regiment of Volunteer Clothing Savers and with the light of love and patriotism in her eyes. Never had she looked so beautiful to him, and he answered softly, "Yes, Dot, it is a wonderful thing to be an American woman, but to me the most glorious of all is that you are the loyal sweetheart of an American soldier."
